Issues Stern Warnings

Federal Judge Hits At Racial Violence

By The Associated Press
Police and leaders of "freedom ride" groups today pondered a federal judge's stern series of warnings aimed at stopping the most recent racial challenge in Alabama and the violence that came with it.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., issued a series of sweeping decrees which:

—Ordered the riders to stop their racial challenge in Alabama until further notice.

—Put Montgomery police and a former reserve policeman under no-bus-violence injunctions, with indefinite jail terms as the penalty for violation.

—Left in effect, pending further court action, a restraining order which prohibits the Ku Klux Klan and three individuals from further violence against the riders or other interstate bus passengers.

Meanwhile, another group of integrationists tried a new tactic on state racial laws at Jackson, Miss. They were peaceful—but unsuccessful.

Thirteen riders arrived at Jackson Friday in two Trailways buses. While Negroes in the groups went into the white waiting room, the whites went into the Negro waiting room. All 13 were arrested for breaching the peace. They brought to 65 the number arrested at Jackson since the rides began last week.

Immediately after issuing his ruling Johnson said:

"I want to make it abundantly clear that this injunction and restraining order will be enforced. If there are any such incidents as this (mob violence) again, I am going to put some Klansmen, some city officials, some city policemen and some Negro preachers in the federal penitentiary."

"Those who sponsor, finance and encourage groups to come into this publicized trips with the knowledge that such publicized trips will foment violence," the judge said, "are just as effective in causing an obstruction to interstate travel as the mobs themselves."

One of Johnson's orders was a restraint against the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and three other "freedom ride" organizations as well as five Negro leaders and "all persons acting in concert with them."

In New York, a spokesman for CORE said it will appeal the order to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Income Tax Nets $46,515 Thus Far

Salem city income tax collections to May 26 have amounted to $46,515.33 and has been applied as first quarter receipts for the period ending March 31, J. Emerson Davis, income tax consultant, reported today.

Davis, in a report to City Council, said it is still too early to reasonably predict the tax yield for the entire year. However, after collections are made for the second quarter ending June 30, an analysis will be made to project figures on an annual basis, he said.

G. S. Kaufman Succumbs at 71

Playwright Won 2 Pulitzer Prizes

NEW YORK (AP)—George S. Kaufman, the playwright-producer who specialized in comedy but became known as Broadway's "gloomy dean," is dead at 71.

He died of a heart attack Friday at his Park Avenue apartment. He had been inactive about a year and a half due to a stroke.

Kaufman was one of the keenest wits and shrewdest businessmen Broadway had ever known, but in some ways he was an eccentric.

He was one of the greatest individualists in the theater—but preferred collaborating on plays to writing alone.

He was a man of immense sophistication, yet he had a rumpled look, hatless, his bushy hair untidy. And as he walked the street he would often talk to himself and grimace.

Kaufman was among the theater's big money earners in his triple capacity as author, director and producer, and he shared two Pulitzer prizes for "Of Thee I Sing," 1931, and "You Can't Take It With You," 1937.

His reputation for gloominess came from the mournful way he would stroll the rear of theaters on opening night or during out-of-town tryouts, mumbling and pulling at his hair.

The opening night of "The Solid Gold Cadillac," written by himself and Howard Teichmann in 1953, brought the usual wrinkles to Kaufman's brow. While waiting for the notices—which of course were complimentary—Teichmann tried to penetrate the gloom with, "Nice day!"

"It was a nice day when they burned Joan of Arc," came the dark reply.

Moss Hart was one of the great names in the theater with whom Kaufman collaborated. Together they wrote "You Can't Take It With You," the 1937 Pulitzer Prize winner, and "The Man Who Came to Dinner," a lampoon of Alexander Woollcott.

Hart broke into the theater in 1930 with another Kaufman collaboration, "Once in a Lifetime," and spoke with warmth of Kaufman in his recent autobiography, "Act One."

Among Kaufman's other hits were "Dinner at Eight," "Stage Door," written with Edna Ferber; "Bring Up the Girls," with Morris Ryskind with whom Kaufman shared his 1932 Pulitzer.

In the 1930's, Kaufman's name turned up in screen star Mary Astor's diary as the man she loved. The matter came to light in a custody suit between Miss Astor and her husband over a daughter. Kaufman dismissed the charge.

Leaders Exchange Toasts In Friendly Terms At Lunch

VIENNA (AP)—The Kennedy-Khrushchev summit meeting began today in a spirit of cordiality defying a rainy Vienna day.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev went to the U.S. embassy residence for the first day's talks. They began with a 75-minute lunch where toasts were exchanged in friendly terms.

It was a far different atmosphere than that which prevailed at the summit meeting at Paris in May 1960, which broke up over Khrushchev's demand that President Eisenhower apologize for U2 spy flights over the Soviet Union.

President Kennedy, evidently buoyed up by his Paris talks with French President De Gaulle, flew to Vienna this morning, a day after Khrushchev had arrived by train. The President told Austrian President Adolf Schaerf that he had come to neutral Vienna in order to promote better international understanding.

Aides expected the President to warn Khrushchev against the war dangers revolving around any new crisis over Berlin, and to urge Soviet concessions in the field of disarmament.

Talks between the two leaders began two hours after Kennedy arrived.

Khrushchev called at the U.S. embassy residence at 12:45 p.m. Kennedy met him on the steps. They shook hands, posing for photographers.

Talked For More Than Hour In Music Room

Then, with advisers gathered around, they talked for more than an hour in the music room—a cozy red and gray parlor where all sat in easy chairs. The talk delayed lunch half an hour.

Informants reported afterward that the two men and their associates had a very cordial time at the luncheon. They toasted each other with champagne and their remarks were described as friendly. Kennedy spoke for three to four minutes; Khrushchev, for about 10 minutes.

Each of the leaders had nine aides present. Kennedy and Khrushchev sat opposite each other at the table. Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko sat on Khrushchev's right and Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Kennedy's right.

Kennedy and Khrushchev dominated the conversation, but Gromyko and Rusk took an active part. There was one exchange between Khrushchev and Charles E. Bohlen, Soviet affairs expert and Kennedy adviser, who speaks Russian.

After the luncheon Kennedy and Khrushchev talked alone with only their interpreters present. For about nine minutes they walked together in the embassy garden. By that time the rain had given way to a dry, brisk wind and bright sunshine.

Then the talks continued in the music room through the afternoon.

When Khrushchev drove up to the residence of U.S. Ambassador H. Freeman Matthews, Kennedy walked part way down the stone entrance steps to meet him.

The two men smiled broadly at each other.

JFK, Nikita Shake Hands For Photographers

Photographers pressed forward and asked for a picture of the two shaking hands. Kennedy said quickly to an interpreter "tell him if it's all right we'll shake hands for the photographers."

Khrushchev agreed and they did. Then they went quickly into the building. Kennedy was host for today's talk, which began with a luncheon and was scheduled to run throughout the afternoon.

Khrushchev will be host at the Soviet Embassy residence Sunday.

U.S. officials said the talks would range over all cold war issues, with special attention to West Berlin, the nuclear test ban talks at Geneva, disarmament and Laos.

Kennedy has made no secret of

President To Urge Reds Drop 'Troika' Formula

As today's meeting started it was known that sometime during the two days of conference here the President plans to tell Khrushchev that the premier's formula for running international organizations with a three-man board—a "troika"—will wreck nuclear test ban and disarmament hopes.

The "troika" would consist of one Communist, one Western and one neutral representative, each with a veto. The veto could be used, U.S. officials said, to block any operation the Soviets did not like.

One of Kennedy's prime aims is to get across to Khrushchev that if he wants any nuclear test ban or disarmament he must drop the "troika" formula and agree to inspection provisions which would minimize the dangers of cheating.

After Kennedy met Khrushchev on the steps the two men went directly into a small parlor called the music room. They sat down in chairs placed side by side. Their advisors circled out on either hand. These included Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The two leaders chatted in a friendly, relaxed way while photographers took photographs for about two minutes.

The youthful U.S. President and French President Charles de Gaulle in Paris agreed that the Western allies must stand firm in their commitment to defend West Berlin against any Soviet attempt to take over.

Kennedy was expected to warn Khrushchev against the dangers of war should the Soviet chief force a new Berlin crisis—as he has indicated he will do late this year.

Before leaving Paris Kennedy openly said his meetings with De Gaulle enabled him to confront Khrushchev "with more confidence."

The millionaire's son and the former coal miner were to get together by lunchtime for their first meeting.

Kennedy's plane landed at 9:50 a.m. The President called the big two conference a "most important meeting in an effort to improve the prospects for more general understanding and peace."

Khrushchev, outwardly confident, arrived in Vienna Friday and said cautiously, "We know one cannot settle everything at once. If, however, one has good will, one can also achieve much within a short time."

After alighting from his plane this morning Kennedy stood at attention as a band played the American and Austrian national anthems and then inspected an

Trujillo Killer Slain, 3 Caught

Accused Leader Is Still at Large

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The Dominican government claimed today to have shot dead one of the assassins of dictator Rafael Trujillo and captured three others. But the accused mastermind of the plot was still at large.

Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., the dictator's son, was directing the manhunt for members of the band of killers amid reports of a widespread crack down on suspected antigovernment elements.

The plot against the elder Trujillo, who ruled with a tyrannical hand for 31 years, was disclosed to have reached right into the presidential palace.

The slain assassin was identified as 1st Lt. Amado Garcia Guerrero, an aide to President Joaquin Balaguer, the figurehead Dominican chief of state.

The accused chief plotter, retired Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, was still at large.

Among the three accused conspirators seized was a civilian caught in a Roman Catholic parish house. The resident priest, the Rev. Gabriel Maduro, was taken into custody on charges of giving asylum to the man, identified as Huascar Antonio Tejeda Pimentel.

The army said guards were being posted around all Catholic churches to protect them against reprisals by angry mobs.

An armed forces communiqué said Lt. Garcia Guerrero was machine-gunned to death hiding in an aunt's house here. He put up a fight and shot two security agents, killing one, before being killed himself.

There were seven in the band that carried out the assassination of Trujillo Tuesday night.

A former army captain, Pedro Livio Ceden, was captured after being wounded in a gunfight with Trujillo and his chauffeur. An engineer, Roberto Pastoriza, alias "Fifi," also was in custody.

Three others who were riding in a group of cars that ambushed the generalissimo were still at large. One of them, Antonio Imbert, was believed to have been wounded in the roadside gun battle. The others were Salvador Estrella, an army officer's son, and Antonio de la Maza Vasquez.

Gen. Diaz, named as the author of the plot, reportedly did not take part in the actual slaying of Trujillo. Diaz is still at large.

Purge Feared In Dominican Republic

U.S. Units Put on Alert In Caribbean

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Navy and Marine units were on the alert along the Eastern Seaboard today amid reports of further disturbances in the Dominican Republic.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said use of U.S. forces in the Caribbean country was not planned now. But he did not rule out the possibility of such action later if American lives were endangered.

According to latest reports reaching officials in Washington, the 5,200 Americans in the island were still unharmed.

U. S. Forces On Alert

These military movements during the night made obvious that there was a considerable alert of Navy and Marine forces on the East Coast and in the Caribbean Sea.

—The aircraft carrier Shangri-La put out to sea at Jacksonville, Fla., under a "general alert" condition. Its decks were jammed with jet fighters. A Navy spokesman said it was ordered to sea "to be ready in the event of an emergency."

—At Camp Lejeune, N.C., a Marine spokesman said units of the 2nd Marine Division were undergoing "a test of our ability to move out rapidly." The Greensboro Daily News, quoting reliable sources, had reported that Marine units along the coast were being loaded aboard carriers to take position in the Caribbean off the Dominican Republic's coast.

Other Ship Movements
—In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said there would be other ship movements, but he and other officials declined to discuss any specific military movements.

Another Pentagon source pointed out that since last year the United States has kept a 2,000-man battalion landing team of the 2nd Marine Division afloat in the Caribbean, ready for immediate action.

This source also noted that the U.S.S. Northampton, flagship of the U.S. 2nd Fleet, put out to sea from Norfolk, Va., Wednesday. He said the aircraft carrier Intrepid sailed Thursday from Norfolk.

At Norfolk, Navy sources had no comment on the deployments.

In Washington, available State Department officials said they knew of no department request to the military to alert forces for use in the Dominican Republic. However, it appeared obvious that contingency plans were Trujillo's wounded chauffeur said, "They shot him down like he was an animal."

News dispatches from Ciudad Trujillo remain under censorship. Reports arriving in Washington through other channels, while still sketchy and not fully verified, paint a grim picture.

It is generally one of a brutal drive by the ruling Trujillo group to knock out any suspected opponents in an attempt to reconsolidate power in the aftermath of Tuesday's assassination.

The accounts tell of arrests, murders and tortures. One report states that the wife of Trujillo's alleged assassin, former Brig. Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, has been killed and his son put to torture.

Confident Living

By Dr. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

How God Answered a Cowboy

A reader of this column sent me an exciting story of his escape from certain death. He is an oldtime cowboy and cattle-ranchman who operates over a wide area as an expert on cattle, horses, ranches and the men who handle them.

"I am going to tell a personal experience," he writes. "I was in Montana running a big ranch. In November we had snow and drifted into patches, then melted, leaving patches of wet ground from ten to twenty feet square. Then these spots froze hard.

"Next morning we left the ranch house at daybreak. I had on a pair of overshoes over my boots, and in getting my horse I got them muddy. We were gathering cattle out of a large pasture. The air was cold and crisp. My overshoes froze to my stirrups, making them like they were set in concrete, impossible to pull out of the stirrups.

"BY ABOUT ELEVEN in the morning those wet spots had thawed a little on top, but underneath still frozen hard. This made them exactly like plate glass covered with about one quarter inch of lard.

"My horse stopped to turn on one of these wet spots, making a quick turn, and his legs went out from under him. The next thing I knew I was under the horse—with my feet frozen in the stirrups. No chance to get loose. And the horse was running and kicking me in the head. I did not see any way out. I simply looked to God and said, 'God, help me.' I repeated it. Then listened with all my mind.

"A thought came to me, which I consider was God telling me. It was: 'Your bridle reins are still in your hand.' I realized that they were. The next thought: 'Pull your horse's head around to you and talk to him to quiet him.' I did. The horse stopped still. Then came the thought: 'Call the cowboy.' There was a cowboy about a quarter of a mile from me. He had not noticed anything was wrong. I called. As the cowboy neared me, I told him to be careful and not scare my horse. He got down from his horse. I told him to take the saddle off my horse. He did—and set me free. I was not hurt at all."

HAVING RELATED this hair-raising story, our friend remarked further to me, "As you are a preacher and not a cowboy, you probably won't understand all this. But I am sure horsemen will realize the seriousness of my position."

For a man to be in a predicament like that and survive is an unusual surprising thing. Some people would say "miraculous." But I believe all things in this universe happen according to God's laws. There are physical laws and there are spiritual laws. When we call something miraculous, it simply means we do not understand the laws involved.

What laws could have been operative in this man's escape from being kicked to death? He himself has strong convictions in the matter.

"You see," he explains, "there were several steps in this rescue. I did not think up a way to escape. I did not think I had a chance. God directed me step by step. I was simply waiting and listening to God. My life was saved because I could understand what God was telling me and because I did it."

WOULD IT BE life or death? Whichever was God's will. I was not at any time scared," he adds—pointing up, it seems to me, what may have been one crucial factor, for fear fogs the mind and can block off God's answer.

"Now can we always get such clear directions as I did? I would say, 'No.' But we can always talk to God about our troubles and trust Him and try to find His will, recognizing that God knows what is best for us and will most certainly do it."

And he adds: "Prayer to me is like picking up my telephone and calling God. Now if God is going to help me, I have to be able to understand what He tells me." Perhaps he ought to qualify this last statement—God sometimes helps in ways quite independent of our understanding. More often, though His help does come in the form of guidance—so our friend's emphasis on understanding is very sound. And from the wisdom of his next words I think all of us can profit:

"The important thing is what is God's will. I think the perfect prayer would be, 'God give me the vision and understanding to know what you want me to do and the faith and strength and courage to do it.'"

Through A Glass
DARKLY

She's frightened. She's seeing the world for the first time through dark glasses.

It's no wonder you and I are frightened. Ever since we were old enough to reason, we have been seeing the world through dark glasses. It's just as Paul said:

"Now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face."

We spend our years wondering why things happen as they do . . . why hatred flourishes and love withers . . . why sorrow seems inevitable and joy so rare. Apparently, we were not meant to understand . . . not here!

Some truths God has revealed to us; these our Churches teach. Other truths God will not reveal until another day; to prepare us for that day our Churches strive.

Until at length we gain that complete vision, we are happiest and strongest when we live faithfully in the truth already revealed. Even with dark glasses a man can see as long as he walks toward the Light.

Everything Ran On Time

The expected murder of the dictator of the Dominican Republic has started more thinking than any event of its kind since an Italian mob beat Benito Mussolini to death and hung him and his mistress by their heels in a gas station. That was in April 1945.

Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina and the former dictator of Italy had much in common. Both were little men with large power and even larger egos. Both thought of themselves as responsible to no one but themselves. Both were paragons of efficiency.

They made the "trains run on time," the feat that brought Mussolini to favorable attention in his day. Trujillo was admired for efficiency, too. Whatever else had to be said about these two that was not good, they were efficient. And they kept their countries secure against Communists like Fulgencio Batista in Cuba.

BUT IT IS those other things that were said about Mussolini, Trujillo, Batista and feat that brought Mussolini to favorable attention even old Syngman Rhee that ultimately loom larger than anything else. They are always the same. Men who absolutely corrupt themselves with absolute power all look the same when the damage has been done to their people.

They became ruthless. They became cruel. Their decisions were arbitrary. They lost all humility. They disposed of their enemies and their potential enemies in job lots.

They resorted to terror to hold their power. They bloodied their hands with needless slaughter and darkened their souls with capricious plots and designs. By all standards of rationality, they turned insane because they were not answerable to society for what they did.

Eventually, it became necessary to get rid of them unless they died in good time of natural causes. When their death has been recorded, moreover, it always is judged to have taken place much too late for the good of the society they mauled and manhandled.

MORALISTS PREACH, even as Nikita Khrushchev preached on a memorable occasion before the 20th Communist Congress in 1956, that men should not let themselves be governed by a superman myth—the Stalin myth in this instance. He said what others had surmised, that the premier of Russia had done irreparable injury with his megalomania. He did not say what also had been surmised, that Stalin finally became so irresponsible he was given a timely shove into the oblivion of death.

Sic semper tyrannis!

Ever thus to tyrants!

It doesn't matter in the final analysis whether the trains run on time or not, if men are robbed of dignity.

It doesn't matter that the caged animals in a zoo may be better off than their counterparts running wild on the plains. Sooner or later, the tyrant gets a taste of the terror that made him a tyrant.

They say in the Dominican Republic that Trujillo pulled a revolver and tried to shoot his way out of the assassination trap that finally was sprung on him.

Sic semper tyrannis!

Quiet Side of the News

Everybody heard about the incidents at Birmingham, Anniston and Montgomery when hostile whites roughed up Negroes who were demonstrating that segregation was still being carried on in bus terminals, though it has been ruled out for many years in bus transportation.

The demonstration was a success, due to the uncontrolled behavior of the angry whites, who did what the Negroes thought they would do. The Alabamians proved that segregation was still carried on in bus terminals; that was the sole purpose of the "Freedom Riders."

But what happens in the wake of the ugly kind of news that erupts when human beings get angry and are not restrained by policemen? What happens when the trouble subsides, the federal marshals go back to their regular duties and life in a strife-riddled community returns to normal? There is a quiet side of the news that rarely gets attention.

One of the two bus companies whose equipment and drivers were involved in the Alabama incidents has reaffirmed a previous directive to get rid of all signs and practices that encourage race discrimination in its terminals. Only in this way can segregation be discouraged in areas where race-baiting is political stock in trade. Private enterprise, which doesn't have to run for office to survive but is concerned only with efficiency of operation, can take the initiative.

This is what it has done in hundreds of instances—thousands of instances. It has not waited for showdowns to force it to do what its managers knew would have to be done sometime in the course of day-to-day operation.

There has been more progress toward equal rights made by private enterprise in this way than would be forthcoming in an aeon of political agitation and legalistic hair-splitting.

They Are Getting the Idea

Americans can understand why Parisians have taken the Kennedys to their hearts. They could understand the enthusiasms in Ottawa a few weeks ago for this attractive couple. It will be the same in Vienna.

The Viennese too, will admire the good looks and the social grace of our young President and his lady. Anywhere they might go in the world they would be awarded the sympathetic recognition that belongs by right to the attractive people of any generation.

The same thing has happened before to government figures — young kings with charming brides—young queens with charming husbands. Americans easily underestimate the impact of attractive public personalities because the system of government here puts the highest premium on men who can survive the vicissitudes of partisan politics and few get to the top before they have lost their hair and their helpmeets have

As was pointed out in behalf of both candidates during the presidential campaign last year, the next president of the United States would be the forerunner of a fresh generation of world figures. He would be under 50. His children would be immature and his wife would be at the peak of her attractiveness.

The time-worn survivors of the reigning political generation, it was declared, would soon give way to replacements from the postwar generation. The Adenauers, Macmillans, Khrushchevs, Salazars, Trujillos and De Gaulles were on the wane. Young men were due to move up—the John Kennedys and the Willy Brandts.

It may not have been clear to Frenchmen in Paris what this was going to mean until they saw President and Mrs. Kennedy in person. In any event, they plainly like the idea of youth in high places, though it has no bearing on the knotty problems of the era. It is just one of those pleasant surprises that relieve the unpleasantness of an age in which we are encouraged to be aware of nothing but problems, problems, problems—and no solutions!

Dairy Princess

A pretty country girl like Donna Marie Denny deserves the title of Dairy Princess.

Donna, a freshman co-ed at Mt. Union College, milks 27 cows each evening at her parents' Salem area farm and during the summer growing season operates farm machinery and assists with house chores too, not to mention church and 4-H activities which share her interests.

That's why Donna was chosen to represent Columbiana County in the Dairy Princess contest at Columbus later this month. Good luck, Donna!

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

Ever since I was slugged and bounced like a yo yo by Ku Kluxers in Atlanta some years ago, I've attempted to watch the efforts of the Klaverites to pull a white hood over many a southern capital. If any cross-burning, anti-Semitic, night-riding horror "knight" ever comes close to any sort of power, it will be the militant 31-year-old Robert Shelton, whose mind and soul have the inner efficiency of a medieval torture rack.

Government reports reveal that Shelton, whose private racket is the Alabama Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., was far deeper in the riots than is apparent at this grim moment. Shelton, with just several thousand followers now, has his strategy well worked out. He is a virulent anti-Semite and has blended his Klanism with distribution of anti-Semitic literature in Gadsden, Ala., factory and workers residential areas.

NOT TOO LONG AGO he railed against Alabama's Gov. Patterson as a "tool of the Jews." He stewed his anti-semitism with agitation for cross burning and the now grimly familiar rioting.

Shelton attempted to recruit members in the big rubber plant which he worked and from which he was fired. His technique is simple. Consolidate the scores of small KKK Klaverns in Alabama by out-horroring his KKK rivals. Then bargain with the bigger out-of-state Klaverns for mergers until he leads one national Ku Klux Klan phalanx.

Then get into the mills and factories and recruit there — provoking racial strikes if necessary — until he enrolls several hundred thousand members.

This vision of violence threw him into a fight last year with one Eldon Edwards, an Atlanta auto worker.

Edwards was Imperial Wizard of the United States Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Shelton was his Alabama satrap.

EDUCATED GUESS of such an authoritative source as the Anti-Defamation League is that Edwards had a membership of some 15,000 to 20,000 Klansmen. He tried to play the role of a respectable club leader. Until he died on Aug. 1, 1960, the Imperial Wizard appeared publicly to reject violence.

"He had sought," an Anti-Defamation League observer told this columnist, "to convey to the general public an image of the U.S. Klans as a respectable, loyal and non-subversive organization. . . . In his six years of leadership the U.S. Klans held relatively few public parades or cross burnings and its main activity appeared to consist . . . of an occasional picnic or fish fry."

In other words, he ran a racket. When Shelton's violence threatened this income, Edwards threw Shelton out of the U.S. Klans.

BY THIS TIME Edwards already had run into other competitors for the "take." This was an outfit called the National

Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

It was set up by Klavern leaders from seven states on Feb. 27-28, 1960. Without hoods, this committee met in Atlanta's Hotel Henry Grady. They said they spoke for vast followings. But a generous estimate would give them 10,000 to 15,000 members. And they were red hots.

They wanted to ride at night and to hell with fish fries. And they rode. Government files show that on Saturday March 26, they burned more than 1,000 crosses in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and several other southern states.

During the year they did more than moonlight. They ran rallies and "speeches" attracting from 200 to 800 people. On March 12 they met in Chattanooga; April 10 Columbia, S.C.; May 22 in Atlanta; July 17 in Orlando, and Oct. 23 in Savannah. They were on the march.

MEANWHILE Shelton's Alabama Knights of the Ku Klux Klan was merging smaller independent units — submerging would be the word. He began bargaining with the National Knights, disdaining his old United States Klans. This is now headed by someone called "Wild Bill" Davidson. He too is getting red hot and is now urging tough, militant action.

But Shelton figures that by eventually merging with the National Knights, he'll be able to swamp his old partners and become the supreme Imperial Wizard. But a lot of decent people in the South as well as in the North have other ideas.

Shelton and his hoods soon will find that out.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter-in-law writes us a letter about once every four months. Usually it's to say thanks for a gift.

Several weeks ago I wrote and asked her to please send us some snapshots of our three grandchildren. They are beautiful youngsters and since she refuses to bring them here to visit (too much trouble) we'd like to show our friends pictures of the children.

This morning the snapshots arrived with this note: "Please mark an X with light lead pencil on the back of the snapshots you like. Then return the pictures to me and I'll send you the negatives so you can have prints made."

What is your opinion of someone this cheap? — NO WORDS.

Dear Grandma: The same as yours—and I don't have any words either.

The Retort Proper

Dear Ann: After seven years of trying to have a family we decided to put our names in for an adopted child. Last week the agency called and told us that our baby had been born and we could come for him in a few days.

Sunday we attended a family dinner at mother's home and my husband announced the good news. My aunt who has a voice like a foghorn bellowed: "Obviously one of you can't have children. Has the doctor told you which one is at fault?"

I was flabbergasted and so was my husband. She then repeated the question in an even louder voice. I was steaming mad and replied, "What difference could it possibly make to you?"

My aunt turned red and snapped back, "Too bad your mother never taught you to respect your elders." Then she left.

Mother says I was rude and that Auntie meant well. Do you feel I owe her an apology as mother says? — STILL STEAMING.

Dear Still: "Meant well" my eye. People who ask such intimate and tasteless questions should be hauled up short. Congratulations to you for having done it.

Parents Of The Groom

Dear Ann: Our daughter, an only child, received her engagement ring last December. The wedding is to be in the fall. She asked that we put the money into a wedding reception rather than spend it on an engagement party and we agreed.

The announcement of the engagement appeared in the newspaper and all our friends have congratulated us.

We have never met the parents of the young man and they have not even phoned us.

It is my understanding that the groom's parents have the obligation to seek out the parents of the bride. It appears that they have no intention of doing the proper thing.

If we do not meet them before the wedding, how shall we act when they finally show up? — A MOTHER.

Dear Mother: The boy's parents are obviously ignorant, stubborn or both. Please, for your daughter's sake, don't stick to the rules of etiquette.

Call the boy's parents and invite them to your home soon. If you don't wish to have them for a meal, invite them for a cup of coffee.

Young married couples start out with enough problems. Don't saddle them with two sets of warring parents.

Did Kennedy Forget?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

JFK Changed Position On Summit Talks

Has President Kennedy gone back on his word — the promise he gave to the more than 60,000,000 people who watched the "great debates" on television last autumn? He has made no explanation to the American people for reversing the pledge of last autumn when he said flatly he would not meet with Nikita Khrushchev unless some agreement on important subjects had been reached beforehand through diplomatic channels. If there is such an agreement now, no word about it has been given to the people of the United States.

Here is what Mr. Kennedy said in the second debate of the series with Vice President Nixon on October 7, 1960:

"On the question of the 'summit,' I agree with the position of Mr. Nixon. I would not meet Mr. Khrushchev unless there were some agreements at the secondary level — foreign ministers or ambassadors — which would indicate that the meeting would have some hope of success, or useful exchange of ideas."

Then, in the fourth debate on Oct. 21, 1960, Mr. Kennedy said:

"Well, I think the President of the United States last winter indicated that before he'd go to the 'summit' in May, there should be some agenda, that there should be some prior agreement. He hoped that there would be an agreement in part on disarmament. He also expressed the hope that there should be some understanding of the general situation in Berlin."

"The Soviet Union refused to agree to that, and we went to the 'summit' and it was disastrous."

"I believe we should not go to the 'summit' until there is some reason to believe that a meeting of minds can be obtained on either Berlin, outer space, or general disarmament — including nuclear testing."

HAS MR. KENNEDY made some secret deal with Premier Khrushchev? No intimation of it has been given to members of Congress, especially in any conferences with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's ranking members.

There have been rumors around Washington, however, that the Communist premier is planning to make some concession in connection with the nuclear-test negotiations in exchange for a continuance of the present moratorium on tests. One report is that he will offer to give up the veto system which Russia has insisted upon heretofore and agree to negotiate a treaty that will permit a limited form of inspection without vetoes.

Certainly any vital change in the hitherto stagnant situation over the nuclear - test ban would be hailed as a big victory for Mr. Kennedy, and it would be inferred that some arrangement of this kind had been worked out in advance.

Actually, withdrawal of the veto provision would not mean an immediate agreement on any of the other points raised in the Geneva negotiations on the nuclear - test ban. The prospect is that the conversations which have already been going on for several years would keep on for a long time to come.

Meanwhile, who gains the real victory?

THE SOVIETS have been trying to keep the United States from doing any testing. Without a formal agreement, each side is supposed to refrain from testing, but is free to resume at any time.

The longer the Soviet Union can keep the United States from doing any testing, the bigger the advantage to the Communists. Scientists of the West are in disagreement as to what can or cannot be done with underground testing. Some say that underground tests cannot be detected, that the Russians know this, and that they are engaged now in perfecting their methods of continuing underground testing.

The world may never know whether a so-called nuclear-test ban is being faithfully adhered to by the Russians, but it will know that the United States during the long-drawn-out negotiations has already given up precious months in which no testing has been done either underground or in the atmosphere.

WHAT WOULD CAUSE great uneasiness throughout the United States would be the discovery that the Kennedy administration had entered into a secret understanding with the Communist government in Moscow in the last three months and that the purpose of the Vienna meeting is to consummate a deal.

If there has really been no agreement on nuclear tests or any other subject through diplomatic channels in advance of the Kennedy - Khrushchev conference, the American people will then have a right to be told why the man who was elected president of the United States — largely by reason of the arguments presented by him in the "great debates" on television last autumn — went back on his promises.

At least, the public is entitled to a frank explanation of the reason for the change in Mr. Kennedy's position within a period of seven months.

Perfect World

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Why isn't this a perfect world today? It could be, but it isn't.

I'll tell you why. People forget the promises they make to themselves.

A man who prides himself on keeping his word with others blithely and conveniently forgets to keep his word with himself. That's why the world is in the same old pickle it always has been.

Just five months ago the outlook was different. The perfect world appeared to be just around the corner.

Everybody woke up with a determination to make himself better, and if everybody really did that a better world would have had to be the natural result.

It was New Year's Day, the day when civilized man takes a long self-inventory of his faults and himself in the mirror and says "Ugh!"

It was the day of national self-reproach, the day when we all highly resolve to make ourselves nobler—even if the battle takes all summer.

It was the one day of the year when a fellow is honest enough to admit his own delinquencies, and doesn't blame his plight on others.

Remember all those high-minded resolutions?

Every husband was going to quit sassing his wife, and cease taking sass from his children.

Every wife was going to make a strict family budget and stick to it.

The boss was going to figure a way to boost employee morale, and the employee vowed to buckle down and pay more attention to his work.

Everybody was going to read more good books, take more exercise, get more sleep every night.

Everybody was going to take a more active role in community affairs.

What if all these millions of individual self-improvement programs launched last New Year's Day had soared onward and upward to their objectives?

Why, right today we'd all be living in a perfect world, a world suffocated with mass virtue, a world in which we'd all be strangers to each other because none of us would be able to recognize the other fellow by his old familiar faults.

As it turned out, however, most of us didn't get our rocketing aims off the pad. We forgot to keep our word to ourselves.

Sure was a narrow escape, wasn't it?

Kennedy

honor guard of crack Austrian troops.

The day was in complete contrast to the bright sunny weather which greeted Khrushchev Friday. A heavy downpour soaked Vienna all morning and looked like continuing throughout the day.

Kennedy was the first off the aircraft. Despite the chill rain he wore no raincoat. Austrian President Adolf Schaerf, standing bareheaded in the steady downpour, welcomed Kennedy as the first American president ever to come into this historic capital on the Danube.

Schaerf said he and millions of other Europeans "wish that the talks here will have real results." He wished Kennedy "full success."

The President replied he was here years ago and was delighted to be in the city again.

The last time an American president and Khrushchev met the fire works plunged U.S.-Soviet relations to a disastrously low point and ushered in six months of intensive cold war conflict.

That was a year ago at the Big-Four summit conference in Paris. President Eisenhower refused to apologize to Khrushchev for U2 spy plane flights over the Soviet Union and Khrushchev denounced him.

When Kennedy landed today Khrushchev was at the Soviet Embassy residence in Parkersdorf. He stepped out on a porch and waved to newsmen waiting in the quiet street below. They called him to come down. But he pointed to the sky and said "dozh", the Russian word for rain.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov, Soviet ambassador to Washington, were with Khrushchev. After 10 minutes on the porch Khrushchev went into the house.

Kennedy appeared to receive a warm welcome dampened by the bad weather. At the Ballhausplatz, police estimated the crowd at about 3,000 people, roughly half of them women. Some American students had American flags. Little groups chanted "Kennedy, Kennedy" before the motorcade with the President arrived.

Kennedy's first official act was to make a formal call on President Schaerf who had met him at the airport.

At the airport a crowd on the balcony of the terminal had come loaded with signs to greet Kennedy and his wife. The people seemed to be mostly—if not entirely—American rather than Viennese. The signs said "Help Berlin," "Lift the Iron Curtain," "Give Him Hell," and "Jackie—Oh la la."

When the Kennedy motorcade left Schwechat Airport several hundred students from the International High School (English-speaking) were waiting at the gate. They cheered and chanted "We want Jackie." The President's chic and pretty wife seemed destined to make a big personal success here, as she did in Paris.

Along the old cobblestoned streets leading to President Schaerf's headquarters, Hofburg Palace, people waited in the rain along the sidewalks.

Kennedy was running about 15 minutes behind schedule when he arrived at the Hofburg. Police estimated the crowd there, in Ballhausplatz, at 4,500. The people applauded, and cheered, and chanted "Kennedy." American students waved U.S. flags.

Generally there is a warm feeling for Americans here and a dislike of Russians dating from the years after World War II when Austria was divided among the big powers. Vienna was split into four national sectors and one international sector and run by the United States, France, Britain and the Soviet Union.

Kennedy waved from his car.

After the President went into the Hofburg he emerged again onto a balcony overlooking Heroes Square. The crowd broke into cheers and shouts of "Bravo" and "Kennedy." The President smiled and waved. He stayed on the balcony for a minute. Schaerf, Chancellor Alfons Gorbach and U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk were with him.

The leaders of the world's two greatest powers will hold talks today and Sunday with no set agenda.

Their first meeting will be before noon in the residence of U.S. Ambassador H. Freeman Matthews in the Hietzing district near the old Hapsburg palace of Schoenbrunn.

Each brings with him the command of nuclear weapons powerful enough to blot out the other's country and much else of the world besides.

Each heads a rival alliance system—massive, formidable and determined to maintain its own way of life.

The world has waited for this conference of the two K's with mixed feelings of hope and dread. In great cities and lonely farms, in jungle villages and smoking factories, the meeting has been built up as a possible important turning point in history.

Whether, in fact, it does produce something more substantial than newspaper headlines remains to be seen.

Diplomats predicted there undoubtedly would be some accomplishments. Whatever else develops, the two men should understand each other's motives better. This, in turn, should enable them more easily to avoid the political miscalculations that could lead to war.

Western sources said Kennedy's big task is to try to convince Khrushchev not to overplay his hand.

Developments in Cuba, Laos and elsewhere must have convinced the Soviet leader that he is a front runner at the moment. This could tempt him to push for a showdown on Berlin and Germany, although most Western diplomats feel he will not go that far.

While in the French capital Kennedy declared that he and the French leader were determined to maintain the West's position in isolated West Berlin against "force or the threat of force" by the Communist powers.

That was the sort of statement which America's European allies could greet with pleasure. Austria's independent influential Kurier divided its front page this morning into three columns and carried an identical editorial in German, English and Russian.

This spoke of the pleasure Austrians felt at the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting. There was no mention of the 2½ million people living behind the Iron Curtain in West Berlin, but the Kurier made its point clear with this statement: "Peace without freedom, a peace won at the cost of a nation."

or even the citizens of a single town, is in fact no real peace at all."

Moscow Radio broadcast excerpts from an editorial in today's editions of Pravda entitled "Much can be achieved through good will."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said "The need for meetings such as is now opening in Vienna is obvious to everyone who correctly assesses the balance of power in the international arena and is genuinely interested in a peaceful future for mankind."

But Pravda charged "dark forces" in the West threaten the success of the Kennedy-Khrushchev talks. It said such forces "for the sake of their selfish interests are ready to plunge entire mankind into the abyss of a nuclear-missile war."

"These forces are not idle," Pravda said. "They fan the flames at the imperialistic armament forges, they turn whole countries of western Europe into floating and land aircraft launchers for NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization), and cover their dependent territories with a network of military bases."

$349 Is Stolen At Service Center

Thieves broke into the Ohio Recapping & Auto Supplies center at 301 W. State St. sometime between 10 p.m. Thursday and 7:30 a.m. Friday and took $349.99 from a cash register.

Joseph Quinn of Geneva, owner, reported the theft to police Friday morning.

Entry was gained by breaking a window in the rear stockroom. The thieves then replaced the piece of glass in the window and held it there by propping a carton against it. They then broke three more panes of glass in a door which leads from the stockroom to the office where the cash register was. This enabled them to reach through and unlock the office door from the inside, police said.

Quinn told police that most of the money was in 20, 10, 5 and 1 dollar bills. A 10 and two 5's, along with some change, were not taken.

Police attempted unsuccessfully to obtain fingerprints. Only glove marks on the glass were turned up.

E. Liverpool Man Faces Murder Trial

LISBON — The trial of Raymond G. Campbell, 25, of East Liverpool, charged with the second degree murder in the Nov. 28 pistol slaying of his wife, Doris Mae, 22, will begin Monday at 9:30 a.m. before Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp.

Indicted by the January Grand Jury, Campbell pleaded not guilty. He was sent to Lima State Hospital for an examination and has been out on bond since his return.

A potter, Campbell is accused of emptying a nine-shot .22 caliber pistol at his wife in the bedroom at their home.

Mrs. Campbell had returned home only the day before after a week's absence during which Campbell filed charges against her in Juvenile Court for abandoning their five-year-old son.

The jury is expected to visit the scene of the slaying before it begins to hear testimony.

Purge Under Way

Meanwhile, reports reaching Washington indicated a purge may be under way on the island in the wake of Tuesday night's assassination of dictator Rafael L. Trujillo.

These reports also indicated that some anti-Trujillo elements may be in control of areas outside Ciudad Trujillo, the Dominican capital.

U.S. policy makers were concerned lest Trujillo's successor mold a ruthless regime which is anti-American — and pro-Moscow, with or without help from Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The United States asked the Organization of American States Friday to send a watchdog committee to the Caribbean country quickly in an effort to stem extreme repressive measures there.

After a hurriedly called emergency meeting, the chairman of the Sanctions Committee, Panamanian Ambassador Augusto Guillermo Arango, said the committee had discussed the Dominican situation and planned to meet again early next week.

Everything Ran On Time

The expected murder of the dictator of the Dominican Republic has started more thinking than any event of its kind since an Italian mob beat Benito Mussolini to death and hung him and his mistress by their heels in a gas station. That was in April 1945.

Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina and the former dictator of Italy had much in common. Both were little men with large power and even larger egos. Both thought of themselves as responsible to no one but themselves. Both were paragons of efficiency.

They made the "trains run on time," the feat that brought Mussolini to favorable attention in his day. Trujillo was admired for efficiency, too. Whatever else had to be said about these two that was not good, they were efficient. And they kept their countries secure against Communists like Fulgencio Batista in Cuba.

BUT IT IS those other things that were said about Mussolini, Trujillo, Batista and feat that brought Mussolini to favorable attention old Syngman Rhee that ultimately loom larger than anything else. They are always the same. Men who absolutely corrupt themselves with absolute power all look the same when the damage has been done to their people.

They became ruthless. They became cruel. Their decisions were arbitrary. They lost all humility. They disposed of their enemies and their potential enemies in job lots.

They resorted to terror to hold their power. They bloodied their hands with needless slaughter and darkened their souls with capricious plots and designs. By all standards of rationality, they turned insane because they were not answerable to society for what they did.

Eventually, it became necessary to get rid of them unless they died in good time of natural causes. When their death has been recorded, moreover, it always is judged to have taken place much too late for the good of the society they mauled and manhandled.

MORALISTS PREACH, even as Nikita Khrushchev preached on a memorable occasion before the 20th Communist Congress in 1956, that men should not let themselves be governed by a superman myth—the Stalin myth in this instance. He said what others had surmised, that the premier of Russia had done irreparable injury with his megalomania. He did not say what also had been surmised, that Stalin finally became so irresponsible he was given a timely shove into the oblivion of death.

Sic semper tyranni!

Ever thus to tyrants!

It doesn't matter in the final analysis whether the trains run on time or not, if men are robbed of dignity.

It doesn't matter that the caged animals in a zoo may be better off than their counterparts running wild on the plains. Sooner or later, the tyrant gets a taste of the terror that made him a tyrant.

They say in the Dominican Republic that Trujillo pulled a revolver and tried to shoot his way out of the assassination trap that finally was sprung on him.

Sic semper tyranni!

Quiet Side of the News

Everybody heard about the incidents at Birmingham, Anniston and Montgomery when hostile whites roughed up Negroes who were demonstrating that segregation was still being carried on in bus terminals, though it has been ruled out for many years in bus transportation.

The demonstration was a success, due to the uncontrolled behavior of the angry whites, who did what the Negroes thought they would do. The Alabamians proved that segregation was still carried on in bus terminals; that was the sole purpose of the "Freedom Riders."

But what happens in the wake of the ugly kind of news that erupts when human beings get angry and are not restrained by policemen? What happens when the trouble subsidies, the federal marshals go back to their regular duties and life in a strife-riddled community returns to normal? There is a quiet side of the news that rarely gets attention.

One of the two bus companies whose equipment and drivers were involved in the Alabama incidents has reaffirmed a previous directive to get rid of all signs and practices that encourage race discrimination in its terminals. Only in this way can segregation be discouraged in areas where race-baiting is political stock in trade. Private enterprise, which doesn't have to run for office to survive but is concerned only with efficiency of operation, can take the initiative.

This is what it has done in hundreds of instances—thousands of instances. It has not waited for showdowns to force it to do what its managers knew would have to be done sometime in the course of day-to-day operation.

There has been more progress toward equal rights made by private enterprise in this way than would be forthcoming in an aeon of political agitation and legalistic hair-splitting.

They Are Getting the Idea

Americans can understand why Parisians have taken the Kennedys to their hearts. They could understand the enthusiasms in Ottawa a few weeks ago for this attractive couple. It will be the same in Vienna.

The Viennese too, will admire the good looks and the social grace of our young President and his lady. Anywhere they might go in the world they would be awarded the sympathetic recognition that belongs by right to the attractive people of any generation.

The same thing has happened before to government figures — young kings with charming brides—young queens with charming husbands. Americans easily underestimate the impact of attractive public personalities because the system of government here puts the highest premium on men who can survive the vicissitudes of partisan politics and few get to the top before they have lost their hair and their helpmeets have

MS Funds Needed

The Columbiana County chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society is doing creditable work among MS patients in the district.

Mrs. Helen Fadely, the tireless director of the local program, has spearheaded the job of helping sclerosis victims but funds are needed to help sustain the project and provide the means of furthering research into the disease that strikes many.

A 15th anniversary fund drive is on today, with 60 per cent remaining locally and the other 40 per cent going to the National MS Society for research. If a canvasser misses you today, you can send a contribution to Mrs. Fadely or to the Salem Kiwanis Club, one of the local groups active in support of MS.

"—Now My Suggestion For a Replacement . . ."

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

Ever since I was slugged and bounced like a yo yo by Ku Kluxers in Atlanta some years ago, I've attempted to watch the efforts of the Klaverites to pull a white hood over many a southern capitalist. If any cross-burning, anti-Semitic, night-riding horror "knight" ever comes close to any sort of power, it will be the militant 31-year-old Robert Shelton, whose mind and soul have the inner efficiency of a medieval torture rack.

Government reports reveal that Shelton, whose private racket is the Alabama Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., was far deeper in the riots than is apparent at this grim moment.

Shelton, with just several thousand followers now, has his strategy well worked out. He is a virulent anti-Semite and has blended his Klanism with distribution of anti-Semitic literature in Gadsden, Ala., factory and workers residential areas.

NOT TOO LONG AGO he railed against Alabama's Gov. Patterson as a "tool of the Jews." He stewed his anti-semitism with agitation for cross burning and the now grimly familiar rioting.

Shelton attempted to recruit members in the big rubber plant which he worked and from which he was fired.

His technique is simple. Consolidate the scores of small KKK Klaverns in Alabama by out-horroring his KKK rivals. Then bargain with the bigger out-of-state Klans for mergers until he leads one national Ku Klux Klan phalanx.

Then get into the mills and factories and recruit there — provoking racial strikes if necessary — until he enrolls several hundred thousand members.

This vision of violence threw him into a fight last year with one Eldon Edwards, an Atlanta auto worker.

Edwards was Imperial Wizard of the United States Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Shelton was his Alabama satrap.

EDUCATED GUESS of such an authoritative source as the Anti-Defamation League is that Edwards had a membership of some 15,000 to 20,000 Klansmen. He tried to play the role of a respectable club leader. Until he died on Aug. 1, 1960, the Imperial Wizard appeared publicly to reject violence.

"He had sought," an Anti-Defamation League observer told this columnist, "to convey to the general public an image of the U.S. Klans as a respectable, loyal and non-subversive organization. . . . In his six years of leadership the U.S. Klans held relatively few public parades or cross burnings and its main activity appeared to consist . . . of an occasional picnic or fish fry."

In other words, he ran a racket. When Shelton's violence threatened this income, Edwards threw Shelton out of the U.S. Klans.

BY THIS TIME Edwards already had run into other competitors for the "take." This was an outfit called the National

Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

It was set up by Klavern leaders from seven states on Feb. 27-28, 1960. Without hoods, this committee met in Atlanta's Hotel Henry Grady. They said they spoke for vast followings. But a generous estimate would give them 10,000 to 15,000 members. And they were red hot.

They wanted to ride at night and to hell with fish fries. And they rode. Government files show that on Saturday March 26, they burned more than 1,000 crosses in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and several other southern states.

During the year they did more than moonlight. They ran rallies and "speaking" attracting from 200 to 800 people. On March 12 they met in Chattanooga; April 10 Columbia, S.C.; May 22 in Atlanta; July 17 in Orlando, and Oct. 23 in Savannah. They were on the march.

MEANWHILE Shelton's Alabama Knights of the Ku Klux Klan was merging smaller independent units — submerging would be the word. He began bargaining with the National Knights, disdaining his old United States Klans. This is now headed by someone called "Wild Bill" Davidson. He too is getting red hot and is now urging tough, militant action.

But Shelton figures that by eventually merging with the National Knights, he'll be able to swamp his old partners and become the supreme Imperial Wizard. But a lot of decent people in the South as well as in the North have other ideas.

Shelton and his hoods soon will find that out.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter-in-law writes us a letter about once every four months. Usually it's to say thanks for a gift.

Several weeks ago I wrote and asked her to please send us some snapshots of our three grandchildren. They are beautiful youngsters and since she refuses to bring them here to visit (too much trouble) we'd like to show our friends pictures of the children.

This morning the snapshots arrived with this note: "Please mark an X with light lead pencil on the back of the snapshots you like. Then return the pictures to me and I'll send you the negatives so you can have prints made."

What is your opinion of one such cheap? — NO WORDS.

Dear Grandma: The same as yours—and I don't have any words either.

The Retort Proper

Dear Ann: After seven years of trying to have a family we decided to put our names in for an adopted child. Last week the agency called and told us that our baby had been born and we could come for him in a few days.

Sunday we attended a family dinner at mother's home and my husband announced the good news. My aunt who has a voice like a foghorn bellowed: "Obviously one of you can't have children. Has the doctor told you which one is at fault?"

I was flabbergasted and so was my husband. She then repeated the question in an even louder voice. I was steaming mad and replied, "What difference could it possibly make to you?"

My aunt turned red and snapped back, "Too bad your mother never taught you to respect your elders." Then she left.

Mother says I was rude and that Auntie meant well. Do you feel I owe her an apology as mother says? — STILL STEAMING.

Dear Still: "Meant well" my eye. People who ask such intimate and tasteless questions should be hauled up short. Congratulations to you for having done it.

Parents Of The Groom

Dear Ann: Our daughter, an only child, received her engagement ring last December. The wedding is to be in the fall. She asked that we put the money into a wedding reception rather than spend it on an engagement party and we agreed.

The announcement of the engagement appeared in the newspaper and all our friends have congratulated us.

We have never met the parents of the young man and they have not even phoned us.

It is my understanding that the groom's parents have the obligation to seek out the parents of the bride. It appears that they have no intention of doing the proper thing.

If we do not meet them before the wedding, how shall we act when they finally show up? — A MOTHER.

Dear Mother: The boy's parents are obviously ignorant, stubborn or both. Please, for your daughter's sake, don't stick to the rules of etiquette.

Call the boy's parents and invite them to your home soon. If you don't wish to have them for a meal, invite them for a cup of coffee.

Young married couples start out with enough problems. Don't saddle them with two sets of warring parents.

Did Kennedy Forget?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

JFK Changed Position On Summit Talks

Has President Kennedy gone back on his word — the promise he gave to the more than 60,000,000 people who watched the "great debates" on television last autumn? He has made no explanation to the American people for reversing the pledge of last autumn when he said flatly he would not meet with Nikita Khrushchev unless some agreement on important subjects had been reached beforehand through diplomatic channels. If there is such an agreement now, no word about it has been given to the people of the United States.

Here is what Mr. Kennedy said in the second debate of the series with Vice President Nixon on October 7, 1960:

"On the question of the 'summit,' I agree with the position of Mr. Nixon. I would not meet Mr. Khrushchev unless there were some agreements at the secondary level — foreign ministers or ambassadors — which would indicate that the meeting would have some hope of success, or useful exchange of ideas."

Then, in the fourth debate on Oct. 21, 1960, Mr. Kennedy said:

"Well, I think the President of the United States last winter indicated that before he'd go to the 'summit' in May, there should be some agenda, that there should be some prior agreement. He hoped that there would be an agreement in part on disarmament. He also expressed the hope that there should be some understanding of the general situation in Berlin."

"The Soviet Union refused to agree to that, and we went to the 'summit' and it was disastrous."

"I believe we should not go to the 'summit' until there is some reason to believe that a meeting of minds can be obtained on either Berlin, outer space, or general disarmament — including nuclear testing."

HAS MR. KENNEDY made some secret deal with Premier Khrushchev? No intimation of it has been given to members of Congress, especially in any conferences with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's ranking members.

There have been rumors around Washington, however, that the Communist premier is planning to make some concession in connection with the nuclear-test negotiations in exchange for a continuance of the present moratorium on tests. One report is that he will offer to give up the veto system which Russia has insisted upon heretofore and agree to negotiate a treaty that will permit a limited form of inspection without vetoes.

Certainly any vital change in the hitherto stagnant situation over the nuclear — test ban would be hailed as a big victory for Mr. Kennedy, and it would be inferred that some arrangement of this kind had been worked out in advance.

Actually, withdrawal of the veto provision would not mean an immediate agreement on any of the other points raised in the Geneva negotiations on the nuclear — test ban. The prospect is that the conversations which have already been going on for several years would keep on for a long time to come.

Meanwhile, who gains the real victory?

THE SOVIETS have been trying to keep the United States from doing any testing. Without a formal agreement, each side is supposed to refrain from testing, but is free to resume at any time.

The longer the Soviet Union can keep the United States from doing any testing, the bigger the advantage to the Communists. Scientists of the West are in disagreement as to what can or cannot be done with underground testing. Some say that underground tests cannot be detected, that the Russians know this, and that they are engaged now in perfecting their methods of continuing underground testing.

The world may never know whether a so-called nuclear-test ban is being faithfully adhered to by the Russians, but it will know that the United States during the long-drawn-out negotiations has already given up precious months in which no testing has been done either underground or in the atmosphere.

WHAT WOULD CAUSE great uneasiness throughout the United States would be the discovery that the Kennedy administration had entered into a secret understanding with the Communist government in Moscow in the last three months and that the purpose of the Vienna meeting is to consummate a deal.

If there has really been no agreement on nuclear tests or any other subject through diplomatic channels in advance of the Kennedy — Khrushchev conference, the American people will then have a right to be told why the man who was elected president of the United States — largely by reason of the arguments presented by him in the "great debates" on television last autumn — went back on his promises.

At least, the public is entitled to a frank explanation of the reason for the change in Mr. Kennedy's position within a period of seven months.

Perfect World

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Why isn't this a perfect world today? It could be, but it isn't.

I'll tell you why. People forget the promises they make to themselves.

A man who prides himself on keeping his word with others blithely and conveniently forgets to keep his word with himself. That's why the world is in the same old pickle it always has been.

Just five months ago the outlook was different. The perfect world appeared to be just around the corner.

Everybody woke up with a determination to make himself better, and if everybody really did that a better world would have had to be the natural result.

It was New Year's Day, the day when civilized man takes a long self-inventory of his faults and himself in the mirror and says "Ugh!"

It was the day of national self-reproach, the day when we all highly resolve to make ourselves nobler—even if the battle takes all summer.

It was the one day of the year when a fellow is honest enough to admit his own delinquencies, and doesn't blame his plight on others.

Remember all those high-minded resolutions?

Every husband was going to quit sassing his wife, and cease taking sass from his children.

Every wife was going to make a strict family budget and stick to it.

The boss was going to figure a way to boost employee morale, and the employee vowed to buckle down and pay more attention to his work.

Everybody was going to read more good books, take more exercise, get more sleep every night.

Everybody was going to take a more active role in community affairs.

What if all these millions of individual self-improvement programs launched last New Year's Day had soared onward and upward to their objectives?

Why, right today we'd all be living in a perfect world, a world suffocated with mass virtue, a world in which we'd all be strangers to each other because none of us would be able to recognize the other fellow by his old familiar faults.

As it turned out, however, most of us didn't get our rocketing aims off the pad. We forgot to keep our word to ourselves.

Sure was a narrow escape, wasn't it?

Enter Corn Program

LISBON — Approximately 21 per cent of Columbiana County farmers with an average of 10 acres diverted their corn feed grain program for this coming season, according to Earl Lora, office manager of the Agriculture, Stabilization and Conservation office in Lisbon.

This is about what the local office expected as most of the farmers produce corn for their own consumption only and are not too interested in selling their corn.

Kennedy

honor guard of crack Austrian troops.

The day was in complete contrast to the bright sunny weather which greeted Khrushchev Friday. A heavy downpour soaked Vienna all morning and looked like continuing throughout the day.

Kennedy was the first off the aircraft. Despite the chill rain he wore no raincoat. Austrian President Adolf Schaerf, standing bareheaded in the steady downpour, welcomed Kennedy as the first American president ever to come into this historic capital on the Danube.

Schaerf said he and millions of other Europeans "wish that the talks here will have real results." He wished Kennedy "full success."

The President replied he was here years ago and was delighted to be in the city again. The last time an American president and Khrushchev met the fire works plunged U.S.-Soviet relations to a disastrously low point and ushered in six months of intensive cold war conflict.

That was a year ago at the Big-Four summit conference in Paris. President Eisenhower refused to apologize to Khrushchev for U2 spy plane flights over the Soviet Union and Khrushchev denounced him.

When Kennedy landed today Khrushchev was at the Soviet Embassy residence in Parkersdorf. He stepped out on a porch and waved to newsmen waiting in the quiet street below. They called him to come down. But he pointed to the sky and said "dozhd", the Russian word for rain.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov, Soviet ambassador to Washington, were with Khrushchev. After 10 minutes on the porch Khrushchev went into the house.

Kennedy appeared to receive a warm welcome dampened by the bad weather. At the Ballhausplatz, police estimated the crowd at about 3,000 people, roughly half of them women. Some American students had American flags. Little groups chanted "Kennedy, Kennedy" before the motorcade with the President arrived.

Kennedy's first official act was to make a formal call on President Schaerf who had met him at the airport.

At the airport a crowd on the balcony of the terminal had come loaded with signs to greet Kennedy and his wife. The people seemed to be mostly—if not entirely—American rather than Viennese. The signs said "Help Berlin," "Lift the Iron Curtain," "Give Him Hell," and "Jackie—Oh la la."

When the Kennedy motorcade left Schwechat Airport several hundred students from the International High School (English-speaking) were waiting at the gate. They cheered and chanted "We want Jackie." The President's chic and pretty wife seemed destined to make a big personal success here, as she did in Paris.

Along the old cobblestoned streets leading to President Schaerf's headquarters, Hofburg Palace, people waited in the rain along the sidewalks.

Kennedy was running about 15 minutes behind schedule when he arrived at the Hofburg. Police estimated the crowd there, in Ballhausplatz, at 4,500. The people applauded, and cheered, and chanted "Kennedy." American students waved U.S. flags.

Generally there is a warm feeling for Americans here and a dislike of Russians dating from the years after World War II when Austria was divided among the big powers. Vienna was split into four national sectors and one international sector and run by the United States, France, Britain and the Soviet Union.

Kennedy waved from his car.

After the President went into the Hofburg he emerged again onto a balcony overlooking Heroes Square. The crowd broke into cheers and shouts of "Bravo" and "Kennedy." The President smiled and waved. He stayed on the balcony for a minute. Schaerf, Chancellor Alfons Gorbach and U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk were with him.

The leaders of the world's two greatest powers will hold talks today and Sunday with no set agenda.

Their first meeting will be before noon in the residence of U.S. Ambassador H. Freeman Matthews in the Hietzing district near the old Hapsburg palace of Schoenbrunn.

Each brings with him the command of nuclear weapons powerful enough to blot out the other's country and much else of the world besides.

Each heads a rival alliance system—massive, formidable and determined to maintain its own way of life.

The world has waited for this conference of the two K's with mixed feelings of hope and dread.

In great cities and lonely farms, in jungle villages and smoking factories, the meeting has been built up as a possible important turning point in history.

Whether, in fact, it does produce something more substantial than newspaper headlines remains to be seen.

Diplomats predicted there undoubtedly would be some accomplishments. Whatever else develops, the two men should understand each other's motives better. This, in turn, should enable them more easily to avoid the political miscalculations that could lead to war.

Western sources said Kennedy's big task is to try to convince Khrushchev not to overplay his hand.

Developments in Cuba, Laos and elsewhere must have convinced the Soviet leader that he is a front runner at the moment. This could tempt him to push for a showdown on Berlin and Germany, although most Western diplomats feel he will not go that far.

While in the French capital Kennedy declared that he and the French leader were determined to maintain the West's position in isolated West Berlin against "force or the threat of force" by the Communist powers.

That was the sort of statement which America's European allies could greet with pleasure.

Austria's independent influential Kurier divided its front page this morning into three columns and carried an identical editorial in German, English and Russian.

This spoke of the pleasure Austrians felt at the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting. There was no mention of the 2½ million people living behind the Iron Curtain in West Berlin, but the Kurier made its point clear with this statement:

"Peace without freedom, a peace won at the cost of a nation, or even the citizens of a single town, is in fact no real peace at all."

Moscow Radio broadcast excerpts from an editorial in today's editions of Pravda entitled "Much can be achieved through good will."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said "The need for meetings such as is now opening in Vienna is obvious to everyone who correctly assesses the balance of power in the international arena and is genuinely interested in a peaceful future for mankind."

But Pravda charged "dark forces" in the West threaten the success of the Kennedy-Khrushchev talks. It said such forces "for the sake of their selfish interests are ready to plunge entire mankind into the abyss of a nuclear-missile war."

"These forces are not idle," Pravda said. "They fan the flames at the imperialistic armament forges, they turn whole countries of western Europe into floating and land aircraft launchers for NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization), and cover their dependent territories with a network of military bases."

$349 Is Stolen At Service Center

Thieves broke into the Ohio Recapping & Auto Supplies center at 301 W. State St. sometime between 10 p.m. Thursday and 7:30 a.m. Friday and took $349.99 from a cash register.

Joseph Quinn of Geneva, owner, reported the theft to police Friday morning.

Entry was gained by breaking a window in the rear stockroom. The thieves then replaced the piece of glass in the window and held it there by propping a carton against it. They then broke three more panes of glass in a door which leads from the stock room to the office where the cash register was. This enabled them to reach through and unlock the office door from the inside, police said.

Quinn told police that most of the money was in 20, 10, 5 and 1 dollar bills. A 10 and two 5's, along with some change, were not taken.

Police attempted unsuccessfully to obtain fingerprints. Only glove marks on the glass were turned up.

Romano's Two-Run Homer Gives Indians 6-4 Victory

Tribe Blows 4-0 Lead

Funk Relieves Bell for 7th Win

CLEVELAND (AP)—The score was tied 4-4 when Cleveland catcher John Romano stepped to the plate in the eighth inning Friday night. Up on the scoreboard a sign flashed: "Romano has hit safely in 16 straight games."

It wasn't so—yet.

Nate Wallack, the Indians' publicist, became frantic. He called the scoreboard operator from a telephone in the pressbox. "Romano hasn't had a hit tonight. His streak is still at 15". Off went the sign.

Phils Blank Pirates 6-0

Reds Lose; Dodgers Defeat Giants on Grand-Slammer

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Dodgers moved into a virtual tie for the National League lead by beating San Francisco 6-2 on a grand-slam homer by Tommy Davis in the 10th inning Friday night after Willie Davis' home run had tied it in the ninth. That pushed the Dodgers past the Giants and within .009 percentage points of the Cincinnati Reds, who lost to the Chicago Cubs 7-6 despite a five-run ninth inning.

Philadelphia defeated Pitts-burgh 6-0, and St. Louis dropped Milwaukee 3-1.

The Dodgers, shut out on three hits for seven innings by Jack Sanford and reliever Bob Bolin, got their first run on a pinch homer by Ron Fairly in the eighth. Willie Davis' ninth home run opened in a frantic ninth, in which the Giants used five pitch-ers, before Willie Mays caught Duke Snider's liner for the third out with the bases loaded.

Dodgers Load Bases

The Dodgers then loaded the bases again in the 10th, on a single by Jim Gilliam and two walks, one an intentional pass to Willie Davis. Bob Aspromonte hit into a force-out at the plate, but Tommy Davis then unloaded his ninth homer of the season, against loser Ed Fisher (0-1).

The Giants, now a half-game behind the Reds and Dodgers, scored on homers by Sanford and Jim Davenport off Roger Craig. Relievers Larry Sherry, Dick Far-rell and Ron Perranoski then blanked San Francisco on two hits over the last 5-2-3 innings. Per-ranoski (3-0) was the winner, striking out two while facing just three men in the 10th.

Cincinnati scored the five in the ninth on a two-run homer by Gene Freese and a bases-loaded double by pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch, but the Cubs had gained their cushion in the top of the ninth on a sacrifice fly by Ernie Banks. The Chicago slugger hit in three runs, all on sacrifice flies. They were his first of the year, and tied a major league record for one game set in 1909 by Harry Steinfield of the Cubs. The only other major leaguer to do it was Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees in 1926.

Jack Curtis, a southpaw rookie, won his first in the majors, with Don Elston's relief in the ninth after blanking the Reds on four hits for seven innings. Bob Pur-key (5-3) was the loser as the Reds' winning streak ended at six games and the Cubs gained their first five-game streak in two seasons.

Right-hander John Buzhardt won his first against five defeats for the Phils by shutting out the Pirates on nine hits. The Phillies tagged Bob Friend (5-7) with his seventh straight defeat as a starter, collecting seven of their 12 hits off the right-handed veteran in 2-1-3 innings. Half of their hits were doubles.

Cards Take 5th Place

The Cardinals took fifth place from the Braves, who now have lost four in a row, on the four-hit pitching of lefty Ray Sadecki (4-3) and a two-run homer by Ken Boyer in the sixth inning off Carl Woyler (2-2). Ed Mathews hom-ered for the Braves in the fourth inning, after striking out seven straight.

Tunney Testifies Ingo Was 'A Sick Man' in Title Bout

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators closed the book today, at least tentatively, on Gene Tunney's swiftly disputed testimony that boxer Ingemar Johansson was "a sick man" and a victim of monopolists in the "rubber" bout he lost this year to heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

Tunney, a former heavyweight champion, exploded his charge at hearings before the Senate Anti-trust and Monopoly subcommittee and racketeers.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chairman of the subcommittee and author of the bill seeking federal regulation, announced he planned no further hearings ex-cept, perhaps, to receive testi-mony from Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Tunney was in the midst of a bitter indictment of racketeers in boxing, and what he termed monopolistic practices by fight promoters and managers, when he charged that Johansson was suffering from a brain trauma in his third fight with Patterson in March.

Tunney contended the Swede suffered a brain trauma when he was flattened by Patterson in their second meeting.

Tunney said an electro-encephalogram (brain x-ray) would have shown Johansson was a sick man and should not have entered the ring for the third bout, but "the monopoly would not allow" such an examination. He didn't identify "the monopoly."

From Sweden, Johansson's per-sonal physician, Dr. Francis Ben-son, called Tunney's allegations "ridiculous."

"I was personally in charge of the physical and mental examina-tions before the match and I can guarantee that Ingo was in per-fect physical and mental condi-tion," Benson said.

In New York, Al Bolan, who was general manager of Feature Sports, Inc., which promoted the bout in Miami Beach, Fla., said Johansson had a complete exami-nation by physicians employed by the Miami Beach Boxing Commis-sion before the bout.

Bosox, Senators Win

Tigers Retain Lead; Yanks Trip Chisox

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers retained their two-game lead in the American League with a 2-0 victory over Minnesota Friday night on the four-hit pitching of Jim Bun-ning and home runs by Rocky Colavito and Al Kaline. Second place Cleveland defeated the Los Angeles Angels 6-4 and third place New York rapped the Chicago White Sox 6-2.

Boston spilled Baltimore 4-2 and Washington walloped Kansas City 12-4.

Bunning allowed nothing but singles, two by Zoilo Versalles, and struck out six. He didn't run into trouble until the ninth, when the Twins loaded the bases with one out on Bunning's lone walk, a hit and an error. Bunning then ended it by getting Dan Dobbek to hit into a double play.

13th For Colavito

Colavito's homer, his 13th, beat southpaw Jack Kralick (4-3) in the second inning. Kaline's sixth-inning shot was his fourth—all in four consecutive games against the Twins, who now have lost 11 of 12 and six in a row while plunging from a second place tie to eighth.

Johnny Romano cracked a 4-4 tie for the Indians with a two-run homer in the eighth off Johnny James (0-1). Woody Held also homered for the Indians, who blew a 4-0 lead. Frank Funk (7-3) was the winner.

The Yankees also relied on home runs, with Yogi Berra belting a pair of solo shots and Roger Maris crashing a two-run homer as southpaw Whitey Ford (7-2) beat the White Sox. Ford blanked the last place Sox on five hits after Al Smith hit a two-run homer in the first inning. Cal McLish (2-6) was the loser, dropping his fifth in a row when Maris' 13th homer broke a 2-2 tie in the third.

Vic Werth and right-hander Don Schwall combined to beat the Orioles with Werth' two-run homer in the ninth. Billy Hoelt (1-1) was the loser for the Birds, who had tied it with a ninth-inning run on a triple by Ron Hansen and a two-out single by Whitey Herzog. Schwall allowed seven hits and walked four, but he struck out five.

Donovan Wins First

Right-hander Dick Donovan, after losing five in a row by one run, won his first with sudden support from the Senators. Their dozen runs off loser Bud Daley (4-6) and three relievers was one more than they scored in Dono-van's five defeats. Dale Long drove in five runs, three with a homer.

Julian said the matches will be held for the benefit of the Little Leagues. They will be held at Kelley Park, however, in case of rain the matches will be staged at the Hi Neighbor Dance Hall.

Walleye's Ready At Tappan Lake

Tappan Lake, located on Rt. 1, between Dennison and Cadiz, has been stocked with 300,000 Wal-leye Fry again this year, it was announced recently. In past years, the Walleye Fry came from the hatcheries at Lake Erie. How-ever, because Walleye hatch-eries were not favorable at the Lake Erie hatchery, the Division of Wildlife used part of the Walleye Fry hatched at the Akron hatch-ery.

Traditionally, the Walleye run at Tappan Lake starts the week of Memorial Day. The best meth-ods of catching Walleyes at Tappan is trolling a night crawler or a fast action small minnow-like lure near the bottom.

Demings Win in Class AA

Spartans, Italians, Old Dutch Victors

The Spartans tripped Sheely's in a slugfest, 13-10; Old Dutch shut out Bliss 7-0 and the Italian Club pounded Theron's 9-1 Friday night in Class A softball ac-tion at Kelley Park.

In a lone Class AA fray Dem-ings copped its first win of the season by scoring a 10-6 victory over Shaffer Ford.

A TOTAL OF 26 hits were taken in the Spartan-Sheely tilt with the winning Spartans rack-ing up 14. Burrier was the hit-ting star for the Spartans as he lashed out three hits, including a home run. Sommers also col-lected three singles for the winners.

The Spartans (3-2) scored first with two runs in the first and three in the second. Sheely's came right back in the second to tally four runs an three more in the third to take a 7-5 lead over the Spartans. However, the Spar-tans rolled up four runs in the fifth and sixth innings to ice the contest.

Seeger and Beck paced the Sheely (1-3) attack with a triple and single for each.

Old Dutch's Murphy twirled a three-hitter in blanking Bliss (1-4). The Bliss nine managed sin-gles in the third, fourth and sixth in-nings.

Scoring five runs in the fourth inning was Old Dutch's biggest offensive. The winners collected six of their nine hits in the in-nings.

Carry Back to Rest After Belmont Today

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Carry Back, bidding for the 93rd running of the Belmont Stakes and a wrapup of horse racing's triple crown for 3-year-olds, will get a rest regardless of what happens in today's 1 1/2-mile race at Belmont Park.

"He deserves a rest," trainer Jack Price said today as he prepared to send Carry Back against eight others of his age for the final jewel of the triple crown which also includes the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

Carry Back, whose last minute victories in the Derby and Preakness endeared him to millions who know little or nothing about horse racing, is the 4 to 5 choice to win the $125,000 added Belmont and become the ninth triple crown winner. The last was Citation in 1948.

Ortega Meets Griffith in Title Fight

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mexico's Gaspar Ortega, a veteran of eight years as a pro and 82 prize fights, gets his first shot at a world title tonight when he meets welterweight champion Emile Griffith of New York.

They tangle over the 15-round route at the Olympic Auditorium, with a national television audience sitting in. Fight time is 9 p.m., Eastern Standard Time. The TV network is ABAC, with southern California marked out.

Griffith, 22, a native of the Virgin Islands, figures to enter the ring a 2-1 favorite to retain the championship. It will be his first defense of the crown he won April 1 by flattening Benny (Kid) Pare of Cuba in 13 rounds in Miami Beach, Fla.

Copromoters Cal Eaton and George Parnassus expect some 7,500 fans to pay about $50,000. They will need this and more to come out ahead. The TV rights brought $60,000. But Griffith gets a guarantee of $50,000 and Ortega gets 20 per cent of the gate and TV money.

The Olympic also guaranteed Pare $10,000 and each fighter donates $5,000 to the ex-champion, all for waiving an immediate return match contract he had with Griffith.

Griffith captured the title in his 25th fight. He has lost but two decisions, one last year to Denny Moyer in Portland, Ore.

Griffith, who designs ladies hats as an off-ring occupation, has never been knocked out. Once, in a preliminary, was he floored but knocked this man out in the next round.

Twins Sign OU Fielder For Bonus

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Joe Nossek Jr., 20-year-old outfielder for Ohio University and this season's leading hitter (.434) in the Mid-American Conference, will join the Minneapolis Twins in New York Tuesday night for a game with the Yankees.

Dick Wienczek, supervisor of scouts for the Twins, signed the 6-foot Euclid, Ohio, youth to a contract Friday for a reported $40,000-$50,000 bonus. Nossek will remain with the Twins for about a week, then goes to Charlotte in the Class A Sally League. A junior, he plans to finish his schooling in the off season.

Also going to the Twins' Charlotte farm club, in about 10 days, will be Bernie Allen, a native of East Liverpool, Ohio, who was a star shortstop and quarterback for Purdue. Allen first will report to the Minnesota club Thursday for two or three days of workouts.

Gene Verble, former Washington Senator infielder, manages the Syracuse team in the International League.

Home Furniture suffered its first setback of the season last night and tumbled all the way from first place to third in the tight Class H race.

The Jaycees pulled the upset over Home Furniture and now share the loop lead with Toar's Wrestlers who, like the Jaycees, won their third straight game of the season last night without a setback.

Greenford remained on top in Class E after extending its unbeaten string to three last night at the expense of Leetonia.

One Class F game had to be called off because only one of the two umpires scheduled to work the game showed up. The game between Fisher News and Elks will be played at a later date.

Class E Commissioner Al Catlos has ruled that a game between E. W. Bliss and CIO 2463 played on May 22 should be awarded to CIO 2463 by forfeit. Carlos upheld the CIO 2463 protest that Bob King of Bliss pitched more than the permitted seven innings in the game which Bliss had won 3-2 in 10 innings. King threw one pitch, a ball, in the eighth inning before he was taken from the mound.

A makeup Class E game between Columbiana Enterprise and Columbiana VFW has been scheduled this afternoon in Columbiana.

Here are the results of yesterday's games:

Class E
Three Class E games were played last night, one in Salem, one in Columbiana and one in Greenford.

Class F
Sekeley's trampled Youngstown Kitchens 8-1 in the only Class F game played last night.

Chuck Joseph scattered five hits to pick up credit for the victory. Steve Brantingham and Doug Plastow, who hurled for Kitchens, recorded nine strikeouts between them.

Class G
Petrucci's pounded Scott Sports 17-5 and National Cleaners trampled K of C 14-6 in a pair of wild Class G contests.

Wally Simpson tossed a two-hitter and pounded out a double and a triple for National Cleaners against K of C. The only K of C hits were doubles by John Mlinarick and Ken Zines. Ricky Lister collected three consecutive singles for National Cleaners, managed this year by Tom Jackson and Harry Ewing.

Petrucci's got their 17 runs on just seven hits. Ten bases on balls and ten Scott errors added to the run output.

Larry Kibler and Scott Cody had two hits apiece for Petrucci's. One of Kibler's blows was a triple. Cody pitched for the winners and held Scott's to just three singles.

Meissner Receives Baseball Monogram
Jim Meissner of Salem was one of 14 members of The College of Wooster baseball squad to earn a varsity award for the 1961 season, according to Coach John Swigart.

This is Meissner's second athletic award at Wooster. During the 1960 season he won his letter as a quarterback. For the past baseball season he was one of four pitchers on Wooster's squad.

Meissner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meissner, 926 N. Ellsworth Ave. He was graduated from Salem High School in 1958.

For the 1961 baseball season Wooster won only five of 15 games, the worst season Coach Swigart has experienced in his 21 seasons as Wooster's baseball coach.

Meissner will pitch this summer for the Salem Merchants team in the Penn-Ohio League.

League-leading Greenford bombed Leetonia 13-3; CIO 3372 buried Famous Market 12-3 and Columbiana Enterprise downed E. W. Bliss Co. 7-4.

Dave Tyo pitched for Greenford, giving up just two hits while walking two and fanning a pair. Leetonia was charged with eight errors in this fray which was called after four and a half innings because of darkness.

Errors also were the downfall of E. W. Bliss Co. who bobbed the ball nine times in its 7-4 loss to Manager Jack Parott's Columbiana Enterprise team which won its first game after an opening loss.

Eddie Shultz hurled all the way for Enterprise, giving up eight hits. Jon Steele started on the mound for Bliss and suffered the setback.

Don Kendrick scattered 10 Famous Market hits and pounded out two singles of his own in the 12-3 win by CIO 3372. Dennis Beery rapped three singles for the losers.

Class H
Class H results had Jaycees clubbing Home Furniture 18-15 an Toar's Wrestlers squeaking by an aroused airy Isle team, 3-2.

Bases on balls ran up the score in the Jaycees-Home Furniture fray. Three Home Furniture pitchers gave up 17 walks and a pair of Jaycees hurlers did the same, making a total of 34 bases on balls in this five-inning tilt.

Winning hurler Art Bowen repped out a homer and a single for the Jaycees. Bob Berilltron had three singles and a base on balls. Jack Detwiler of Toar's Wrestlers pitched the first no-hitter of the season but it wasn't a no-hit, no-run game because Dairy Isle pushed across a pair of markers.

Floyd Crawford yielded only two hits to Toar's, but the winners combined the hits with a pair of walks to score all three of their runs in the second inning. Pitcher Detwiler started the rally himself with a leadoff double. Fred Saftred collected the other hit.

Dairy Isle tallied both of its runs in the second inning when Detwiler momentarily lost control, walking four batters and hitting another. He recorded nine strikeouts in the five-inning fray.
